Dear Family member:

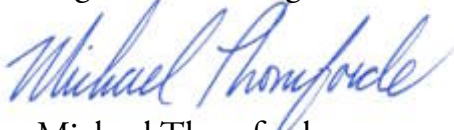

We hope you enjoyed our East Timor Special Report in part one. Now we want you to join us in part 2 as we share with you from Thailand, the results of what can take place when we all join in and reach across the borders of land and culture.

The Northeast of Thailand is the area and culture of the Isaan people, also the poorest region in the country. The Isaan name comes from Ishana, the Hindu god of death. So in the vast, dry farmland of small village life, many are the struggles of a third of the population and great is the desire for a better life.

Here is where Serving Our World and you step into the picture. The conditions of poverty and the allure to flee to richer areas of the country, give way to the numbers of young boys and girls abandoned or orphaned by disease and neglect.

The Isaan are wonderful people, easy going and always want to make you welcome. Here amongst the deep culture and hardship we are bringing the light each week to the children and families of the village. Enjoy the journey and we hope that you will desire to become part of a growing family and the lovely Isaan people of Thailand.

Together touching lives,

Michael Thomforde
